About Array Technologies, Inc.

Array Technologies is one of the world's largest manufacturers of ground-mounting tracking systems used in solar energy projects. The Company's principal product is an integrated system of steel supports, electric motors, gearboxes, electronic controllers and software, commonly referred to as a single-axis "tracker." Trackers move solar panels throughout the day to maintain an optimal orientation to the sun, which significantly increases their energy production. Solar energy projects that use trackers generate up to 25% more energy and deliver a lower levelized cost of energy than projects that use conventional "fixed tilt" mounting systems. Array Technologies is headquartered in the United States with offices in Europe, Central America, and Australia.
